This church, one of the few of this denomination, was organized between 1840 and 1850. The building was constructed around 1850.

The layout is unique with the pulpit at the front, and a sloping floor to the rear with raised stalls for the elders or Trustee's and their families, along the rear wall.

No existing records are to be found as the church was abandoned some 25 years ago. One or two members still survive, but do not live in the vicinity of Colebrook.

The title of church property is in the names of the former Trustees who are deceased.
